Subdivisions: city dwellers foot the bill

Land sales in county . . . booming. But, busting county?

By CARROLL WILSON

The television advertisement exhorts its audience to enjoy country living without the expenses of owning a home in the city.

For an ever-increasing number of city residents the exhortation is effective and many have already made the transition from life in an incorporated municipality to life in one of more than a dozen mini-cities with mini-taxes which are proving to hold many problems for the governmental entities in Randall County.

Those who make the transition are trading life in Amarillo or Canyon for life in a tightly populated subdivision where city tax structures do not reach, but where city-type services are virtually demanded.

And, South Amarilloans and Canyon residents are bearing a double tax load to give the subdivision dwellers the services they demand.

That's the crux of a knotty problem Randall County commissioners have been trying to cope with on a piecemeal basis for several years.

The inequity of providing city services to subdivision residents with a limited rural-type tax base has surfaced only occasionally in recent years for commissioners in fragments of the overall problem of dealing with subdivisions.

Virtually unrestricted growth of subdivision areas in the county have spawned urban-type problems which must be dealt with on a rural-type tax base and with rural-type laws through which to work.

The Problem

County Commissioner Paul Lindsey, a former Canyon mayor and representative of the bulk of the rural area in the county, outlined the problem this way:

"Actually, they move out to subdivisions to avoid the controls which cities have. By the same token, then, they want the same conveniences as they had in the city without having to pay for them or without being controlled."

Lindsey explains that families which move into rural Randall County subdivisions are not being taxed for conveniences or services which they came to expect in city life and the expectation for which they carry over into their subdivision life.

As an example, Lindsey cites the taxes being paid to Randall County for certain subdivision property in a north subdivision. There, some lot owners are paying 32 cents on their property, the rate charged for farm acreage.

Yet, residents in the same subdivision have demanded the county construct a road for their area at a cost estimated to be about $12,000.

Providing streets or roads for subdivisions has become a hassle for commissioners during recent months, particularly since Lindsey's election to the commission.

Believing that Canyon or South Amarillo residents should not have to foot the bill to provide good roads for persons who move to subdivisions to escape city taxes, Lindsey last year spurred development of a strict rural road construction policy which places the burden of road construction on developers.

The new road policy, which spells out in detail the requirements for construction of roads, has been a bone of contention for some developers, several of whom have appeared before commissioners court to complain of its strictures.

In essence, the road policy tells developers that if they want the county to assume responsibility for the maintenance of their subdivision streets or roads, then they must meet the qualifications laid out. The policy states that if subdivisions are platted as small city-type developments, then developers must provide city-type streets complete with curb and gutter.

Developers complain that providing city-type streets jacks up the prices of their lots to unreasonable levels.

Lindsey contends county residents should not be taxed to provide city-type streets for subdivision residents who pay the same kinds of taxes.

In his backing of the road policy, Lindsey has predicted that if the regulations are not strictly applied, county taxpayers in rural areas as well as in Canyon and Amarillo will have to cough up well over a million dollars in the next two decades to pay for maintenance of city streets in subdivisions.

The county, simply put, cannot afford to be in the business of providing city streets for subdivision residents, Lindsey says.

Police protection poses same problem

While the county's problems in trying to cope with providing fire service and street maintenance for rural subdivisions have made headline news in recent months, the specter of problems to come in providing police protection worry Sheriff Cliff Longest.

Crime hits hardest in tightly populated areas and infrequently in rural areas.

But, as primarily rural Randall County becomes checkered with housing subdivisions, areas outside city boundaries and therefore outside the mantel of protection provided by traditional city police forces, the problem becomes almost nightmarish in potential.

Longest, who has a dozen-man deputy force to work civil and criminal cases and handle the jail and offices, foresees a time in the not-too-distant future when the more than a dozen subdivisions will demand more than casual deputy involvement.

60 senior citizens make center a living entity for city oldsters

More than 50 Canyon senior citizens agreed Thursday night to come together to form a senior citizens center here after hearing reports of the operation of a similar center in Amarillo.

They will meet again at 7 p.m. Thursday to have a covered dish supper at the Canyon community center. All local senior citizens are invited to attend the evening. A brief business meeting will be held to set dues and take care of other business. And, tables will be available for various games.

Tom Black was named chairman of the group Thursday night and Gladdis Samples was named vice chairman. W.E. Miller was named secretary.

A 14-member fact-finding committee to begin plans for center activities was also named.

Mike McQueen, executive director of the Amarillo Senior Citizens Association, spoke briefly to the group, outlining the types of programs available for a senior citizens center in Canyon.

The group unanimously supported the founding of a center in Canyon.

Margaret Logan, director of the Amarillo Retired Senior Volunteer Program, also presented a brief summary of the RSVP program. She announced an extension of the Amarillo office is open in Canyon. (The program is explained elsewhere in today's issue).

Tentative plans call for the senior citizens to use the community center on Thursdays to provide activities and programs.

Next Thursday's program will include a musical group and other entertainment.

The 14-member fact-finding committee, which will eventually become the board of directors for the center, includes the following:

Mrs. Murray Bonifield, Mrs. Van Schickedanz, Mrs. Alfred Hamblen, Charles Conatser, Gladdis Samples, Iris Gazzaway, Frances Northcutt, Hersey Williams, Cole Walker, Tom Black, W.E.

Mike McQueen, director of the Amarillo Senior Citizens Center, outlines possible programs for a Canyon center before a group of about 60 Thursday night here. Those attending agreed Canyon should have a center.

Wheat abandonment slows here but more seen after harvest

Requests from Randall County wheat farmers for appraisals of their drought-stricken crops have slowed to a trickle, local ASCS officials said this week.

Donald F. Lloyd, director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service in Canyon, said 467 farms have been appraised for future payments under a new federal crop disaster program.

Of that number, Lloyd said appraisals and full paperwork have been completed on only about 100 of those farms.

A tally on those 100 farms indicates 20,176 acres have been abandoned and about 7908 acres remain for harvest.

Lloyd said the 100 farms are among the first to request appraisals from ASCS officials to qualify under the federal program.

The director said the 467 farms so far reported probably represent the vast majority of farms on which wheat will be abandoned until after harvest in early to mid summer.

"Most farmers who are going to abandon have done so by now," he said. "If they haven't yet they'll probably keep them for harvest. The chances are they have hopes they can at least get their seed back."

Lloyd said there are about 700 farms in the county participating in various federal programs administered through the ASCS. The 467 farms affected by the drought which have requested abandonment appraisals represent almost three-fourths of that total number.

He said even though some farmers haven't abandoned any dryland wheat acreage so far, they can wait until following harvest and if the yield is abnormally low, they can become eligible for the disaster payments.

This year's dryland wheat crop has been plagued from its inception by lack of rainfall and by greenbug infestations. Very little moisture fell last fall during planting season.

Only about two inches of rain has fallen in the majority of the county since last fall and only about an inch of that has fallen since the first of the year.

The drought comes on the heels of a wheat crop year which saw a record number of acres planted and harvested in the county. That record coupled with record high prices and record yields to give local wheat farmers the best year they ever had.

They harvested a $12 million wheat crop in the county in 1973 after voluminous winter and spring rains.

Even this year's irrigated crop has suffered from the lack of adequate moisture.

Stateside spree ends in jail for Vietnam mystery man

The iron bars clanged shut before Nguyen Kinh Doanh, but undaunted, he called the jailer back to his cell.

"I'd like to have my tea and orange juice now," Doanh smiled, his voice heavy with a Vietnamese accent.

It was with that flamboyant flair that Doanh — if that's his real name — began his stay in the Randall County jail recently. And, it apparently typifies his almost bizzare tenure in this country.

Doanh is a mystery and somewhat a curiosity to staid Randall County deputies, men used to drunk cowpokes or hardened thieves or youthful marijuana offenders.

A small, dark haired man, the kind of visage Americans viewed on their television screens daily during the Vietnam conflict, Doanh is a mystery because authorities here aren't even sure they know his real name, much less any other circumstances of his life.

Doanh weaves a tangled story of his life in the Vietnamese army, then his trip to the U.S., and his meanderings since entering this country.

Right now that wandering has stopped.

Doanh is charged in Randall County with

Randall County Dist. Atty. George Dowlen said Doanh is charged specifically with opening a checking account at West Texas State Bank here with a $90 deposit. The charge alleges he then returned to the bank and deposited a $1000 check written on a Maryland bank account in the name of a fictitious company, and then wrote another check to himself for $800.

Dowlen said investigation reveals the same type activity was pursued at the Canyon First National Bank and at four banks in Amarillo.

He estimates that about $7000

Ads to aid youths

Canyon youngsters looking for summer employment will receive a boost this spring through the Canyon News classified advertising page.

News Editor Carroll Wilson announced this week that the paper will offer free advertising on the classified page for youngsters to place ads looking for summer jobs.

The service will begin with Thursday's issue and will continue one month.

The free ad policy applies only to local youths 18 years of age or younger.

Youngsters interested in finding jobs for the summer should call The News at 655-7121 before 10 a.m. Wednesday or before 10 a.m. Saturday. The ads might seek employment in specific business categories or might simply list lawn mowing service or other job qualifications.

The ads will be placed in a special section of the classified page with the hope that local businessmen and homeowners will be better able to locate young people interested in summer work opportunities.

A limit of 15 words will be placed on each ad and each ad will run for the month period unless The News is notified to stop the ad.

Judge cites judiciary article

'Hornswaggle' seen in con-con

"They're trying to hornswaggle us down there," harrumphed County Judge Woody Pond as he wheeled around in his high-backed office chair.

Brief reports came into the judge's office throughout the day Thursday from Austin and each report brought new information about floor debate at the Texas constitutional convention on an article which Pond believes will harm county government, an article which could relieve him of his judicial duties.

The judge was mad and nervous as he fielded the telephone calls, calls which came from other county judges and from a Texas Association of Counties representative in Austin.

Delegates to the constitutional convention Thursday began debate on the controversial Judiciary Article of the proposed new constitution for the state.

The article calls for a unified judiciary system with the supreme court becoming the state court of last resort in both criminal and civil matters. It calls for courts of appeal to hear both criminal and civil appeal cases from district courts.

But, that's not where the controversy is as far as Pond is concerned.

The part of the article which sticks in his craw is a section which calls for all county judges to be attornies. The section proposes that current county judges who are not attornies would become the administrative chiefs of county government. But, their judicial duties would be turned over to a county circuit court, which would hear civil and criminal litigation and such other matters as probate hearings.

During the hearings portion of the constitutional convention, Pond appeared before the Judiciary Committee to testify in Austin

County salary policy breach highlights personnel woes

When Randall County commissioners last Monday went behind closed doors to raise the salaries of several tax office employees, they violated the wording of their own written personnel policy and pointed up what some disgruntled employees term an inequitable and antiquated salary system.

County commissioners have only a loose system for setting salaries, a system based almost solely on history, the minimum wage laws and administrative demands.

They violated their stated and adopted personnel policy last Monday for the third time in recent months when they granted raises to employees in the office of Mrs. Audrey Bruse. Mrs. Bruse pleaded the cases for her employees in executive session and commissioners raised their salaries in open session last week.

The official "Randall County Personnel Employment Policy," readopted by commissioners the first of the year, states: "Salary adjustments will be in writing and presented to the commissioners not later than December 1. Salaries shall be adjusted on the day designated. This will be the final adjustment for the fiscal year."

In action in January, commissioners gave an across-the-board 5.5 per cent salary hike to all county employees and elected officials except themselves.

Prior to that they had broken their personnel policy twice, once by granting a raise to County Road Supt. Joe West, and again only weeks ago when they voted a raise for sheriff's dispatchers.

County Judge Woody Pond, when contacted following the meeting Monday, could not defend the commission's action.

"I don't blame them for being mad," Pond said of the attitude of county employees.

Pond said he's been worried "about the reaction to the commission action among other county employees.

Ired county employees, who stress that they have no recourse in affecting change in their salaries except to resign their positions, point out that a breach of policy is not the only inequity in the county salary system.

They note that the 5.5 per cent hike in salaries granted by commissioners in January did not even meet inflation for the previous year's period nor the anticipated inflation rate for the coming year.

Federal Department of Labor figures indicate the cost of living rose by 8.8 per cent last year.

They also point out inequities in the payment of men and women on the county payroll.

Cited specifically is the case of Richard Mason, clerk in the county clerk's office who received a pay raise to the top clerical pay scale in January even though he'd been employed by the county only a few months and had received a salary increase in December.

County commissioners themselves receive more in salary and car allowance than any female employee of the county.

Commissioners receive a $520 per month salary and $100 per month for car expenses.

The highest paid female employee of the county makes $530 per month.

Men working in the sheriff's department and on road crews also make substantially more than women employees. Most female employees make either $380 per month or $420 per month. Road crewmen make $565 per month and deputies make $770 per month.

Other criticism has been levelled at the lack of a real

Our World

Morality Will Save Country

By ANN BROWN

The majority of Americans are not republicans. And the only time many democrats voted for Richard Nixon they lost their votes. There are good people, however, among republicans, democrats, and independents.

One's politics like his religion should be of his own choosing. None of which alters the fact that our President is not being dealt with according to The Golden Rule.

America was founded on Christian principles, and dedicated to God. That would require our national policies to adhere to The Golden Rule regardless of personal convictions.

How many Americans would like all their private communications made public?

Apparently, no one has yet proved that Nixon had any prior knowledge of Watergate. And even if he had been solely responsible for that sorry affair, millions of Americans have already expressed more concern about several other policies of his administration.

Probably more of us resent our President fraternizing with our communist enemies than we do his questionable vote-getting tactics.

And what about the solemn promise Nixon made in his inaugural speech not to interfere with America's time-honored principle of free enterprise by enforcing wage and price controls?

There is no question that the overwhelming majority bitterly resent federal control of public schools that the Nixon Administration has continued.

And surely more people opposed Nixon's support of the no-win war he inherited from two democratic administrations than resent Watergate.

The language on the President's tapes is as reprehensible and degrading as the sentiments expressed. But how can people who patronize X and R rated movies, pornographic book stores, and make Eldridge Cleaver and Erich Segal required reading in our colleges presume to judge him?

How dare the congressmen who approved Nixon's deficit spending policies that have heaped upon us a greater national debt than all previous administrations combined condemn him over Watergate?

Precious few stood up and cheered the IRS victory over Nixon or Agnew. Most Americans know the federal government is a colossal waste disposal that channels rivers of tax money into thousands of gravy trains. The 1974 federal tax burden stands at $3,642 per family.

A good example of federal boondoggles is Sen. George McGovern's "Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs." In 6 years of doing nothing, it has cost the taxpayers $1.5 million. The only consolation lies in knowing it will cost us more than money if he ever does do anything.

If we are going to talk about impeaching Presidents, there were many visionary Americans who thought Johnson should have been impeached for his War on Poverty, which added fuel to the fires of inflation as well as fostering graft, crime, and idleness; and increasing our already unbearable tax burdens.

and many of our national defense experts thought Kennedy should have been impeached for allowing the communists to take over our little neighbor just 90 miles to the south, and then embroiling us in a hypocritical war against communism halfway around the world.

Multitudes cried out for Truman's impeachment when he fired MacArthur.

And a few whispered that F.D. Roosevelt should be impeached when he launched his New Deal that started the U.S. on the steep incline toward the welfare state.

They began shouting when they learned he had prior knowledge of the Pearl Harbor attack. And the shouting rose to a tumult when he sold us out to Russia.

To go back a little farther, about half the Americans thought Lincoln should have been impeached for sending federal troops in to rape and pillage the South, a disaster from which they have not recovered in over a hundred years.

But if every President had been impeached every time a group of good Americans thought he needed it, we would have the same kind of unstable government that has always plagued our South American neighbors.

A tree can't be killed by cutting off the top; the roots must be destroyed.

No political party or President can save this country. It can only be saved by we-the-people returning to the Christian morality upon which it was founded.

So until we clean up our language — public and private, ban pornographic magazines, books, and movies, and stop being permissive of crime in the local courts, who is qualified to cast stones at the President?

Problems of Counties

By CARROLL WILSON

The county commission is a political animal, coming into electoral heat each four years or thereabouts.

That it is a political animal is nothing new, but it serves us well to note occasionally the political maneuvering which goes on.

An example occurred last Monday in commissioner's court session here.

County commissioners have for a number of years promulgated a stated personnel policy which outlines the stipulations concerning sick leave, annual vacations, pay periods and so on.

One section of the policy states emphatically that salaries for all county employees will be set once a year on a date set by the commissioners. Salaries, the policy says, will not be adjusted except on that date.

But, a couple of weeks ago, commissioners veered around their policy by granting raises to some of the sheriff's department dispatchers. Sheriff Cliff Longest came to the commissioners in open court, with newsmen sitting in the room, and asked for the raises, citing the definite need to stay competitive with other governmental units in their salaries.

Then last Monday, Mrs. Audrey Bruse, who has a penchant for calling for closed commission meetings, went into seclusion with commissioners to talk about personnel.

When the commissioners emerged from their executive session, they granted some salary increases to several of Mrs. Bruse's employees.

It has become virtually a truism that Mrs. Bruse can get from commissioners just about anything she wants to run her tax office domain.

Needless to say other employees in the courthouse are not too pleased that they received only a 5.5 per cent raise to alleviate the hike in the cost of living last January and must wait until next January to get another cost of living raise.

The commissioners action points up the simple fact that the county administration is inadequate to handle the problems which face it.

Commissioners, who make $620 a month for attending a three or four hour meeting once a week, have little to do with the actual administration of county government. They do not devote the time necessary to come up with a workable personnel policy which will provide for merit raises for employees or for longevity pay for long-time workers.

County Judge Woody Pond cannot do it all himself.

Likewise, county commissioners do not devote the amount of time necessary — and possibly shy away from the issue due to political expediency — to come up with adequate planning to meet the future needs of the county.

Needs such as those outlined on the front page of this issue, needs involving the rapid development of rural areas and the problems those needs pose.

Commissioners in a fit of political whimsy several years ago lowered the tax rate. With ill-focused foresight they set the stage for what could lead to fiscal disaster for the county unless adequate plans are laid now.

But, politics dictates that they should do little to make waves. After all, chances are they won't be around when it all hits the fan. The taxpayers may be holding the bag as a result of illogical tax cuts and inadequate planning, but the commissioners themselves may not even be on the court when that happens.

The idea that the county judge should be the chief administrative officer of the county is itself no solution to the problem.

If, as some critics say, the county judge is not capable of handling judiciary matters unless he is an attorney, how can it make sense that the county judge would be capable of handling the task of administering the county in a professional manner?

Yet, that's one of the proposals in the revised Texas Constitution now under scrutiny in Austin. The proposal calls for stripping the county judge of his judicial duties and making him chief administrative officer of the county.

But, the same document also contains a possible solution to the problem. The solution for Randall County lies in home rule and the hiring of a professionally-trained administrator to run the mechanism of county government.

Home rule could bring county government in this state out of the dark ages, lessen the impact of pure politics on the operation of the county and give the people the tools they need to ensure adequate planning rather than expediency.

Letter to the Editor

Impeach Nixon, Reader Agrees

Dear Carroll:

Thanks for a good editorial in last Sunday's paper. As you know, I firmly believe that it is vitally important that the House of Representatives approve a bill of impeachment of President Richard Nixon so that the Senate can hear the case and decide on the future of our political system. I am convinced that the future of the United States as a representative democracy governed under law hangs in the balance. If the American people demonstrate a willingness to tolerate a government inhabited by men of the moral quality made patently clear in the tape transcripts, and implied at least by the fragmentary information thus far made public regarding the whole "Watergate" syndrome, then I fear the American people have reached the point where they will tolerate anything.

After my jarring discovery of recent days that the most active Democrats in Randall County (I presume they are the most active by their presence at the Randall County Democratic Convention), after two years of publicity on the Watergate affair, the legal work of the Special Prosecutor's Office, and recently the investigations of the House Judiciary Committee, are still so uninformed as to be ignorant of the definition of impeachment, I must confess that already my faith in democratic government has been shaken. The most essential prerequisite for democracy is an informed electorate, but if the debate on impeachment at the Randall County Democratic Convention is any indication of the state of the informed Randall County voter, then democracy in the United States will have to struggle along without much of a contribution from Canyon and South Amarillo.

Of course, the essential local avenue of public information is an honest and unbiased press. While Amarilloans are unfortunately without such an institution, we in Canyon can appreciate your good work —keep it up.

Sincerely,
Michael D. Green

Soil Stewardship Week Begins Today

Today begins Soil Stewardship Week, May 19-26, which is sponsored by the Palo Duro Soil and Water Conservation District. The theme for the week is "A Different Place."

According to Bill Casteel, the purpose of the observance is to emphasize man's responsibility to protect and conserve soil, water and other natural resources.

The theme for this year emphasizes how many changes now occurring in the nation affect our continuing responsibility to be good stewards of the land according to Casteel. Casteel said that the energy shortage, environmental pollution and the growing concern over land use are examples of changes and developments affecting the use of America's natural resources.

At a breakfast for local ministers and other interested persons at the Canyon Community Center on April 21, Bob McCasland introduced the Soil Stewardship Program and gave each one present a copy of this year's observance booklet.

The district has furnished eight local churches with bulletins and inserts for use on one of the Sundays during the observance week.

Churchlife Happenings

By LORENA MILLER

FAR HORIZONS
Lord of the far horizons
Give us the eyes to see
Over the verge of the sundown
The beauty that is to be.
—Bliss Carmen

This little verse was borrowed from the First Christian Church newsletter as a fitting thought to be used with our churchlife column this week. We have heard many comments and are pleased with the church response to the column. Our many thanks for your continued cooperation. . . The News Staff.

"The time has come to begin yardwork" according to the newsletter of the First Presbyterian Church of Canyon. The church members will begin work on the new church yards soon and those interested in helping are urged to contact the church office at 655-3676 or call Donald Olson, 655-3579, and you will be notified when work dates are set.

The Christian Youth Fellowship and Chi Rho group of First Christian Church will have as their guest Ron Boyter at a meeting at 6 p.m. Sunday, May 19. Boyter will give a special program on the use of radar by the highway patrol.

"The Man; Husband and Father" will be the worship service topic for Southside Baptist Church in the family life series of sermons prepared by Jimmy Rogers, pastor. Rogers will speak about the man's role in life at regular worship service this morning, Sunday, May 19, at 11 a.m.

Children in the Primary Choir and the three Bell Choirs of the First United Methodist Church of Canyon presented a special musical program at the Mother's Day Service last Sunday morning. The Primary Choir is directed by Mrs. Myron Dees and the Bell Choirs are directed by Mrs. Raymond Hinders with Mrs. Janie Mann, assisting.

Sign-up sheets for youths interested in the Ecumenical Vacation Bible School activities in June will again be available this Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church, First Christian Church, St. Ann's Catholic Church, United Methodist Church and St. George's Episcopal Church. Children from 3 years old (on or before Sept. 1, 1973) through sixth grade will be included in the church school sections and are urged to sign-up now.

Co-ordinators for the Ecumenical Church School are Dolores Cole of the Episcopal; Marie Kershen of St. Ann's Catholic Church; Jane Stephens of the First Presbyterian; Karen Sheffy of the United Methodist and Marilyn Maynard of the Christian.

A senior dinner for graduating high school seniors of the Central Church of Christ in Canyon will be held Sunday evening following regular worship services at the home of the pastor, Dwyane Dennis, 2512 11th Avenue.

Honored at the First Baptist Church on Mother's Day were recognitions for Mrs. Lou Ann Angel, the youngest mother; Mrs. Colebanks, the oldest mother present; Mrs. Wallace Johnston and Mrs. Bill Foil, mothers with the most children present; and Mrs. Billy Carl Morton for traveling the farthest distance to visit with her mother, Mrs. C.F. Rogers, on Mother's Day.

Marsh and Marilyn Noblitt have been busy at the Central Church of Christ with many things including a recent repainting of the baptistry in addition to their regular duties, according to "The Canyon Caller," a newsletter published by the church.

Salary. . .

system for providing merit raises or longevity raises.

There is no mechanism in the county personnel policy for either merit raises or longevity raises.

Likewise there is no automatic mechanism for salary hikes to adjust to cost of living.

County commissioners, when they meet in their annual sessions to set salaries, through their motions and votes provide the only input to the salary system.

Yet another problem for county employees who feel their salaries should be adjusted is the fact that there is virtually no mechanism for them to air complaints about their salaries.

A state law recently passed by the Texas legislature curiously gives the elected county officials an avenue to meet with commissioners concerning their salaries. The law provides for the establishment of a salary grievance committee made up of non-county employees or officials to hear complaints about salaries.

The law does not apply to employees of the county other than elected officials.

While the county continues under its policy of commissioner-set and administered salary systems, the City of Canyon has for several years had a graded system for salary adjustments. The system includes built-in longevity and merit pay raises for employees.

County commissioners recently had the opportunity through the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission to employ, along with the City of Canyon and several other Panhandle governmental entities, a firm specializing in salary compensation systems.

Currently, the firm at nominal charge and working through a federal grant, is studying the Canyon pay system to update the scales and bring them in line with industry and other cities.

The county is not participating in the study.

But, according to Judge Pond, the county commission has a plan to revamp the county pay schedule.

What is the plan?

"I really don't know," said the judge.

RSVP Offices Opening Monday

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program will open in Canyon offices Monday according to Margaret Logan, RSVP project director.

The temporary offices will be located in Room 201 at the Randall County Courthouse and will be open from 9:30 to 11:30 each morning Monday through Friday.

"We will play a big part in the Senior Citizen's Center here if it gets going," stated the director. The goal of the RSVP project is to eventually work with 1,000 registered volunteers and acquire 125 volunteer non-profit work stations within the next five years.

The RSVP was created in 1969 through amendments to the Older Americans Act and became operational in 1971 providing the senior generation with a recognized role in the community giving a meaningful life in retirement through volunteer services, according to Margaret Logan.

Locally, the organization of RSVP is funded by ACTION with a Federal Grant of $25,995, going to the group. The grant is renewable each year and should be self-supporting at the end of a five year period.

The Retired Senior Volunteer Program is a project of the Texas Panhandle Community Action Corporation, 1605 West Seventh Street, Amarillo and is designed to serve senior citizens in Potter and Randall Counties. The headquarters of RSVP in Amarillo are at the Senior Citizens Center, 1309 South Tyler, with operations there presently in the second year.

Eligibility for the RSVP program requires that the volunteer be at least 60 years of age although no qualifications or special skills are necessary. No charge is involved and the program is open to all citizens above 60 regardless of race, creed, national origin, religious belief, political affiliation, educational background or income.

"The RSVP Project is not designed to replace or fill paid positions and is only to provide needed volunteers to any and all non-profit organizations desiring volunteer workers," related Margaret Logan.

Some of the positions sought for volunteers will include tutors, arts and crafts, drivers, readers, friendly visitors, clerks, handymen, babysitters, cooks, seamstresses and office help. The project includes orientation, training, supervision and periodic consultations with the volunteer participants.

"We also publish a monthly newsletter, have various social functions and numerous programs of interest to our volunteers," she said, "in addition to our volunteer work positions."

The RSVP program is without cost to the volunteer and requires only a few hours each week to participate. Volunteer workers are insured while on the job and provided with transportation to the job when needed as well as meals for volunteers as guidelines permit.

"Our main problem here will be adequate transportation," she said. "In Amarillo we have the city buses and cabs too but we reimburse for private conveyance at 11 cents per mile."

Senior citizens in Canyon and Randall County are urged to contact the RSVP offices at the courthouse or call the office at 655-2451 for further information.

weekend-type housing developments, where families keep a second or vacation home, also increase the potential for increases in criminal activity.

Longest points to two recent examples in areas traditionally steeped in weekend homes.

Burglars recently hit one home in the Palisades and removed a bed, box springs, blankets, stereo, chairs, dining room suit, silverware and a sofa.

Because the owner of the house did not live there and visited only infrequently, the case is a hard one to break for deputies. The facts are scanty and evidence hard to come by.

They know, for example, that the burglary occurred some time during the two weeks before the burglary was reported.

It will likewise be difficult to break a case on another similar burglary which occurred at the Palisades. In that break-in, burglars took a television, stereo, several rifles, a vacuum cleaner, rocking chair, grandfather clock, two tables, a movie projector and two wrist watches.

Because few people live permanently in the Palisades, activity of persons in and out of the area is impossible to monitor, Longest said, making the areas prime targets for daylight burglaries.

While the weekend-home areas are the most vulnerable to crime, Longest envisions a burgeoning of problems connected with subdivisions which offer city-type living without the protection of city police.

"About all we can do now is try to patrol the areas and try to keep the traffic down," he said, noting that his office is focusing more and more attention on the suburban subdivisions. "We don't have the manpower to patrol the whole county."

For the future, a future which may see the traditional deputy becoming more a subdivision policeman, Longest sees the only solution in the formation of neighborhood patrols or formation of subdivision police units.

He cites the case of Lake Tanglewood, an area with both permanent residents and weekend residents. Tanglewood incorporated several years ago as a village and now has a town marshall.

Rehearsals For "Texas" To Begin Soon

Rehearsals will start next Sunday for the ninth season of "TEXAS."

Members of the cast and crew and hospitality staff — about 140 people — will gather in the Branding Iron Theatre on the campus of West Texas State University to meet the staff and directors of the production, to have their pictures taken, to discuss the business of the show, and to receive their schedules for the next weeks.

The cast rehearses 6½ days a week, eight hours a day to get ready for the opening: singing, saying lines, blocking motion, and going through warm-up exercises so that each one will be able to run to his place on stage (sometimes a quarter of a mile from the dressing room) and to arrive calmly with enough stamina to sing or dance.

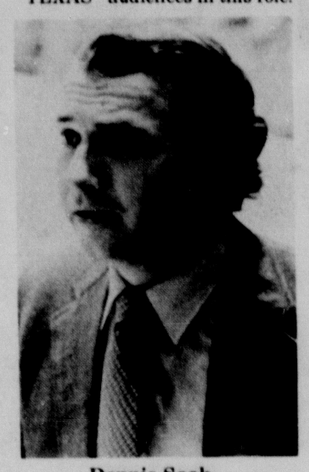
There are seven principal roles in the production. The actors who will appear in these parts are as follows, in the order of their appearance on the stage:

Uncle Henry will be played by Dennis Sook, of Minnesota and New York, who comes to Canyon directly from a tour with the National Shakespeare Company which covered 30,000 miles in eight months. His early theatrical experience was in Minneapolis and St. Paul and he has B.A. degrees in speech and in theatre from Mankato College, Minn., and Augustana in Illinois. His advanced work was at Southern Illinois University.

The second actor to appear is Calvin Armstrong, who will be played this year by Don Washburn. Don is a student at West Texas State University. His major roles include "A Man for All Seasons," "A Company of Wayward Saints," "Camelot," "A Train Going Somewhere," "The Marriage," and "Macbeth." At the awards night for 1973-74 in the Branding Iron Theatre last Sunday, Don received awards for his roles as Tesman in "Hedda Gabler," the deaf mute in "Madwoman of Chaillot" and for his direction of Noel Coward's "Private Lives."

The "TEXAS" audience next becomes acquainted with Kate who will be played by a newcomer to the "TEXAS" stage, Robin McKenzie Goodhue, wife of James Goodhue of Amarillo. She has made many appearances in the Amarillo area, however, and is well known to Panhandle audiences through her work with the Diamond Horseshoe Supper Theatre, and the High Plains Center for the Performing Arts. Her many credits include performances at the Okoboji Summer Theatre at Spirit Lake, Iowa, the Front Street Theatre in Memphis, Tenn., and Colony Catherine near Amarillo. While seeking her advanced degree at West Texas State University, this year, she has appeared as "Z" in "Village Wooing," Mme. Josephine in "The Madwoman of Chaillot," and Hedda Gabler in "Hedda Gabler."

Tuck soon appears to match wits with Kate, and for the seventh season, Jerry Williams will return to delight the "TEXAS" audiences in this role.



Dennis Sook

He has whetted his skill in comedy through work at West Texas State University, and in community theaters. During the day Jerry owns and manages William's Et Cetera, a shop of antiques and specialties, and also serves as a clinician in speech pathology, a field in which he is certified.

The fourth leading character in the ninth season of "TEXAS" is another newcomer to this production, Dwayne Hood who will play Dave Newberry. Dwayne holds a degree in music from Texas Tech University and is choral director at the Denver City High School. He is also director of the Denver City Community Chorale and has produced and directed "The Sound of Music," "The Music Man," "Brigadoon," and "Lil Abner." His acting credits include roles in most of the above plus the Devil in "The Devil and Daniel Webster," old man in "Androcles and the Lion," and parts in many other musicals such as "West Side Story" and "Oklahoma."

Elsie comes on the stage in the show shortly after Dave. For the sixth season, after an absence of two years, Neva Chowning will appear in the role. She trained for her responsibility as leading lady with many appearances in important roles during her years at West Texas State University and received her B.S. degree. Now she has returned for her Master's work after becoming a licensed real estate saleswoman in Austin. Her major field is business and communications and combines work in speech and finance. During this year she has directed "Hedda Gabler," played the lead in Noel Coward's "Private Lives," and was elected Best Actress for the year for her portrayal of Countess Aurelia in the "Madwoman of Chaillot."

The seventh leading role introduced in the script is that of Aunt Anna. For the fifth season, Jane Lipscomb will support and scold Uncle Henry. As a member of two pioneer ranching families, she knows her role from the experiences of her own grandmothers'. She received her B.A. degree from Texas Women's University, her graduate work from Columbia University. While in New York, she was a member of the Daltry Opera Company. During the past year, she has given much time to the Amarillo Little Theatre, appearing in "Mame" and working diligently to arrange and publicize the Costume Shop in downtown Amarillo.

These seven actors and their accompanying cast of 73 more people, will open the ninth season of "TEXAS" in the Pioneer Amphitheatre in the Palo Duro Canyon State Park near Canyon and Amarillo on June 19, 1974. They will play nightly except Sundays through August 24, 1974. For tickets and information write to "TEXAS," Box 268, Canyon, Texas 79015 or call 655-2182. Showtime is 8:30 p.m. CDST.

Judge. . .

concerning the proposed section.

Nevertheless, the committee reported out a section which would have taken judicial responsibilities from lay county judges.

The section's tenure Thursday on the convention floor was marked by confusion, according to observers.

While Pond spent a good deal of time making his fellow county judges aware of the debate on the section, delegates to the convention first rejected one proposal, accepted another similar one and then finished up their week's work without a firm decision.

Clyde Walter of the public information office of the convention said the section now stands with a provision that the county judge does not have to be an attorney. It would be left to the legislature, though, to describe the duties of county judges. County circuit courts would be established but no decision has been made on whether their establishment would be mandatory.

"They're not locked in yet on the article," Walter said. "Anything can happen."

For Pond that's at least a word of optimism. Because the article did not pass as originally introduced, he feels there's some hope supporters of his view will hang on to battle over the article.

"If it passes," Pond said with a smile, "I'll tell you what I'm gonna do. I'm gonna make sure that circuit judge doesn't have an office in this courthouse. I'm staying right here."

In a more serious vein, Pond said the system as proposed would be extremely costly to counties and would be almost impossible for smaller counties where there are no attornies.

He noted that one provision of the article calls for all fines and fees collected by the circuit court to go to the state treasury. In the past, the fines and fees have gone to the county coffers.

Jail. . .

was raised by Doanh through that method.

Doanh's arrest involved an unusual affray, according to officials. They say a warrant was issued for his arrest, but Doanh had gone to Dallas where he was involved in a fight during which he was robbed. He went to the police department to report the robbery and was nabbed on the Canyon warrant.

The Vietnamese was booked into Randall County jail under the Doanh nomenclature.

But, "we don't know what his name is," Dowlen says. "We don't know how many names he's been using. We're not sure the name we've got him booked under is his real name."

That's just the beginnings of the "don't knows" for the district attorney.

"We don't know whether he's a citizen but we think he's a Vietnamese national.

"We don't know how long he's been in this country.

"We don't know how he got into this country."

While there seem to be a lot of questions to be answered for the district attorney, Doanh himself tells an interesting story of his travels.

About two years ago, officials quote him as saying, he deserted from the South Vietnamese army after serving about two months and went into Cambodia. There, he asked for asylum at the U.S. Embassy but the asylum was denied.

Some months later, Doanh told officers, he entered the U.S. on a visitors visa through New York.

The 30-day visa was apparently never renewed and U.S. Immigration Service officials have a detainer on Doanh as he sits in the county jail.

Doanh's travels took him to Albuquerque, Denver, Maryland and then through the Texas Panhandle. Officials in all those states are examining bank accounts in various cities.

Doanh only spent about three days in the Canyon-Amarillo area before going to Dallas.

Now that he's settled in one spot, his mail's catching up with him. Records indicate that in one day last week Doanh received 107 bills from various recording companies, book clubs and banks.

Two Borthers Arrested Here On Kan. Charge

Two men feared to be carrying a Thompson submachine gun were arrested Thursday night by Randall County deputies at a South Amarillo home on a Kansas warrant alleging armed robbery.

Richard LeRoy Hart, 42, of Liberal, Kan., and his brother, Tommy Lawson Hart, 35, were arrested by officers and booked into the Randall County jail.

They were taken into custody at the younger Hart's home at 4400 Lipscomb in Amarillo.

Randall County Sheriff Cliff Longest said the two are wanted for aggravated robbery and aggravated assault in connection with an incident which occurred in Kansas recently.

He said officers believed the two to be armed with automatic weapons.

Citywide Tasting Tea Honors Outstanding Women In 7 Clubs

Seven home demonstration clubs of Randall County honored their "women of the year" at a citywide event Thursday at the Canyon Community Center.

Sponsored by the Randall Home Demonstration Council, the event is staged annually and this year followed the theme "Home Our Life" with various table decorations used on each of the seven club's tables where floral arrangements complemented the decor. About 90 persons were registered at the tasting tea luncheon as members of the clubs provided dishes complete with recipes ranging from salads to main course items.

Honorees for each club were presented with a corsage as the tasting tea began at 11 a.m. to run for about two hours.

Tickets for the tea were priced at $1.25 with Mrs. Max Bosley presiding at the registration table. All proceeds from the event will be used to further training for 4-H youth and 4-H adult leaders in the county.

HIGHLAND HD CLUB honored Mrs. Clarence Howard as their woman of the year. She has been active in clubwork for more than 25 years in the Canyon and Bushland area. She and her husband live northwest of Canyon where he is engaged in farming and ranching. They have four children and ten grandchildren and are members of the Church of Christ.

Mrs. Howard, who is currently president of the county council, has for many years held a perfect attendance record in the Highland Club and served it as president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, and council delegate in addition to various committees. Prior to her election as council president, Mrs. Howard has served the council as secretary for 2½ years.

In keeping with the theme for the day, Mrs. Howard's table was decorated by the Highland HD Club with a small picket fence surrounding a home with a community in the background. Along with her clubwork, Mrs. Howard spends much of her spare time in craftwork, cooking, sewing, canning and freezing foods.

SUNNYHILL HD CLUB honored Mrs. Weldon Tucek as their woman of the year. Mrs. Tucek has been active in her club for about 4 years and held the positions of secretary-treasurer, vice president and is currently president of the club. A native of Plainview, Mrs. Tucek was raised in Tulia and married Weldon Tucek in Canyon in 1962 establishing their home in Randall County.

The Tuceks have three children including two sons, Lonnie, 11, and Dewayne, 10, with a young daughter, Melissa, 3. Their home is six miles east of Happy. She is also current president of St. Paul's Lutheran Women's Missionary League and helps each year with Vacation Bible School.

Sometimes seen driving a tractor or helping with the pig-feeding, Mrs. Tucek also spends her time sewing, knitting and especially enjoys baking and decorating cakes and cookies for many occasions. She is presently working on a new landscaping project in progress at her home.

Sunnyhill Club honored their woman of the year by decorating her table with gold double branch candle stands flanking a central bouquet of spring flowers and arranged on a yellow cloth.

JOWELL HD CLUB honored Mrs. James G. McManigal as their woman of the year. The former Miss Willa Jane Elliott and her husband were married August 16, 1969 and have one daughter, Christy Suzanne, 2½ years of age.

The McManigals reside southwest of Canyon in the Jowell Community and she earned her degree from Texas Tech University in home economics education in 1969. She graduated from Happy High School. She taught in the Hearn Junior High School and was also an assistant home extension agent in Lubbock County previously.

Currently, Mrs. McManigal is secretary-treasurer for the Jowell HD Club and also active in the Woman's Study Club, Order of the Eastern Star and works with the Rainbow Girls. Her husband teaches in the Animal Science Department at West Texas State University.

Jowell Club honored their woman of the year with a table laid in pink and centered with a spring bouquet of yellow daisies, pink carnations and purple iris accents.

WESTSIDE HD CLUB honored Mrs. T.J. Myers who has been active in home demonstration work since 1932 in three different clubs including the Lakeside Club in 1932, later in Fairview and now in the Westside Club since 1952. During her many years in home demonstration work, she has served in the capacities of president, secretary-treasurer and council delegate.

Mrs. Myers (Vivian) and her husband, Curley, have been retired for several years. She formerly operated the Kreme Kone Drive Inn on 23rd Street in Canyon for twelve years. Since retirement, the Myers have spent many hours traveling in their camper to Corpus Christi for deep sea fishing from their boat there. In their travels, they Myers have also attended three World's Fairs, been in 48 states, Canada and Old Mexico. On a recent Canadian trip, they were in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island where they were closer at the time to London, England than to their home just west of Canyon.

In recent years, Mrs. Myers has had failing health but this handicap has not dampened her independence, determination and continued activity in home demonstration and community life.

Her club honored Mrs. Myers with a table featuring a map and photographs of her travels centered with a spring bouquet of iris, peonies, pink roses and white roses. Accenting the table, and the tables for each "outstanding clubwoman," was a silver relish dish engraved in their honor.

EDGETOWN HD CLUB honored Mrs. R.W. Thompson who has been in home demonstration clubwork for 18 years beginning originally in the 1930's. She and R.W. (Hunk) Thompson of Washburn were married June 22, 1940 and have lived in Canyon most of that time.

They have three children: Mrs. Jerry (Joan) Castle of Midland; Dick of Amarillo; and Mrs. Larry (Sue) Anderson of Odessa.

Mrs. Thompson was born February 24, 1918 to J.H. and Cora Hollabaugh and she has three brothers and two sisters. She attended Sunnyhill, Jowell and Happy schools for her education.

The Edgetown Club's table was decorated with a country cloth and featured a pair of special bouquets made from calico cloth. Flanking the bouquet were milk white holders bearing yellow candles.

PLEASANTVIEW HD CLUB honored as their "woman of the year" Mrs. J.H. (Rae) Barrett who has been in home demonstration work here since 1946. The Barretts live south of Canyon and are members of the Baptist Church. She attends the Eunice Sunday School Class and enjoys gardening and helping others.

Mrs. Barrett has been in clubwork in Claude for 18 years prior to moving to Canyon and becoming involved in clubwork here in 1943. The Barretts celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1970 and have four children, seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

The table recognizing Mrs. Barrett was decorated with a blue denim cloth featuring banding of bandana print and the basket of white daisies was covered in the matching red bandana print material.

PALO DURO RUSK HD CLUB honored Loudene West with a table featuring posters accounting to the "homelife" theme. She was born in Sayre, Okla., and was an active 4-H member while in schools at Sweetwater and Sayre, Okla., winning several ribbons for project work.

Mrs. West and her husband, Bill, were married June 3, 1950 and are the parents of two daughters and a son. Their daughter, Terry, is a junior at East Texas University in Commerce taking a double major in art and married to Ric Wester, who is studying printing and photography at ETU.

The West's son, Billy, is a student here and employed with Santa Fe Railway Company as a brakeman. Their youngest, Kelley, is a seventh grade student at Canyon Junior High School and participates in scouting, band and piano.

Her husband, Bill, has been a Santa Fe employee for 26 years including the past 10½ years that the Wests have lived in Canyon. They are members of the First Baptist Church and she is active in the Friendship Sunday School Class. She is also a member of the Band Parents Association, assists with the Cadet Girl Scouts for seventh grade, and is employed as a bookkeeper with the Randall County District Clerk's office for the past seven years.

Palo Duro Rusk HD Club has had Mrs. West serving as council delegate for the past year, helping with recreation and was recently elected yearbook chairman for 1974-75. Her pastimes include making clothing for herself and Kelley along with freezing garden produce from her husband's gardening efforts. She also makes bedspreads and curtains used in the family home and utilizes many ideas learned at club in her daily routine. Last year she also enrolled in a bookkeeping and accounting course at Amarillo College.

Trinity Baptist Church Scene Of Marriage Vows

Double ring marriage vows for Miss Rhonda Cheryl Sutton and Stephen Earl Stege were solemnized Friday evening in the sanctuary of Trinity Baptist Church in Amarillo.

Officiating was Rev. Jack Ridlehoover, pastor of Pioneer Drive Baptist Church in Abilene.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Noel Sutton of 4624 Cherokee in Amarillo. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stege of Indianapolis, Indiana.

Pianist was Glenn Crossthwait of Abilene with Mrs. O. J. Sitzes as organist playing the prelude Amazing Grace, Under His Wings, How Great Thou Art and More. Jesse Sutton, father of the bride, sang Sunrise, Sunset from Fiddler on the Roof and as the mother of the bride entered a duet Lord of the Loving Heart was sung in dedication to the mothers. Following the quoting of I Corinthians 13 by the bridegroom, the bride sang Saviour Like A Shepherd Lead Us arranged by Charles McCloud. Other music included You're A Gift sung by Miss Fern Strait and the Singing Men of Hardin Simmons University with Tom Pack, vocal instructor at HSU, singing Wedding Prayer. During the Book of Ruth ceremony a vocal arrangement of Whither Thou Goest was presented by Fern Strait.

An archway of brass covered with greenery, two spiral candelabrum and matching brass baskets filled with white mums and gladioli decorated the altar area. Small brass candelabrum sat on the altar railing and by the piano and organ. Brass hurricane lamps were used for decorating the aisles of the church. The memory candle and Book of Ruth service were performed at a table draped with white eyelet.

Mrs. David Spivey, matron of honor, wore a dress of sheer white polyester-cotton with flocked strawberries in a sleeveless styling with full ruffle at the neckline and double ruffles on the long full skirt. The red trim on the ruffles was complemented with a red ribbon worn at the empire waistline and on the large white hat. Her ensemble was complemented with white wrist length gloves and she carried a cascade bouquet of white mums and baby red roses.

Miss Celeste Sutton, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a matching dress to the matron of honor and carried a long stemmed red rose. Other bridal attendants were Mary Margaret Scivally of Waco and Randel Thompson of Abilene and Mrs. Greg Stanley of Fort Worth, sister of the bridegroom. The bride's sister, Miss Andrea Sutton of Amarillo, was junior bridesmaid and carried a white basket of spring flowers.

Earl Stege, father of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Tommy Culwell, Kelly Autry of Fort Worth, Paul Krake of Abilene and Greg Stanley of Fort Worth.

Alan Keister of Amarillo and David Foster of Abilene served as ring bearers for the couple. The groomsmen also served as ushers for the occasion.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress which she had designed and which had been made by her mother. The bodice of the Italian poie de soie was covered with re-embroidered lace and accented with sheer sleeves of bell-mist with lace scallops. The fitted cuffs featured matching lace and the full skirt of satin poie de soie was topped with a double skirt and chapel train of sheer bell-mist. The train was trimmed with appliques of flowers in the re-embroidered lace and she had an elbow length veil caught to a cap of Italian poie de soie and lace. She carried a bouquet of white roses and stephanotis atop a white Bible.

A reception in fellowship hall followed the ceremony with the Singing Men of Hardin-Simmons University entertaining guests. The four-tiered wedding cake was topped with large wedding bells and white bows. Swans and bells of crystal sugar and red roses carried out the bride's chosen colors. Mints of red and white roses were made by Mrs. Jerome Peak of Odessa, aunt of the bride. Mrs. Peak also made the red velvet cake with white icing which was resting on a scalloped doilie of red velvet.

Other aunts serving in the wedding party were Mrs. H. L. Hitt of Arlington, Mrs. Paul Stockemer of Alma, Arkansas and Mrs. James Lawrence of Fort Worth. Guests were registered by Miss Fern Strait of Abilene and Mrs. Tommy Phelps of Amarillo.

For a wedding trip to points in the Ozark Mountains of Missouri, the bride changed to a sleeveless dress with white bodice and red and white checked skirt. The jacket of red and white checks complemented the ensemble which was completed with red sandals and a white straw hat.

After June 1 the couple will establish their home in Abilene, Texas.

The bride attended Canyon Junior High School while her father served as minister of music and education at the First Baptist Church of Canyon. After moving to Amarillo, she was graduated from Tascosa High School and attended Amarillo College on a music scholarship. She is presently a senior music education major at Hardin-Simmons University where she is also a member of Sigma Alpha Iota honorary music fraternity and recently won their scholarship for the spring of 1974.

The bridegroom graduated from high school in San Antonio and from Hardin-Simmons University with a B.S. degree in religious education in 1973. He has completed his first year as a Master's student in Religious Education at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary of Fort Worth while also serving as the minister of education and youth for Eastern Hills Baptist Church in Garland, Texas.

Barrett of Pleasantview HD Club; Mrs. T.J. Myers of Westside HD Club; and Mrs. R.W. Thompson of Edgetown HD Club.

Mrs. Raby Lee Ratliff
nee Miss Kim Diane Killingsworth

Nuptials Exchanged At First Baptist

First Baptist Church of Canyon was the setting for the marriage of Miss Kim Diane Killingsworth and Raby Lee Ratliff at 7:30 p.m. Friday evening, May 17.

Rev. Bill Foil, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring service where an archway entwined with greenery centered the satin draped altar with each side accented with nine branch candelabra holding pink tapers with large arrangements of mums and carnations in varying shades of pink. Seven branch candelabra with pink tapers were placed at floor level on each side of the altar steps.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Killingsworth of 2405 9th Avenue in Canyon. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Ratliff of 1300 3rd Avenue, Canyon.

Traditional wedding music was presented at the organ by Mrs. Ann Dawdy and the bridegroom's sister sang More and Twelfth of Never. Rev. Bill Foil, pastor, sang The Lord's Prayer as the benediction for the marriage service.

Escorted and given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk organza over bridal taffeta. The wedding gown was designed with Cluny lace tracing a pattern on the fitted empire bodice and loosely fitted Victorian lace collar. The long full sleeves were caught at the wrists by deep Cluny lace cuffs. Her A-line skirt was trimmed with a lace flounce at the hemline and swept to a full chapel train. Satin ribbon and lace encircled the waistline and ended with a bow at the center back.

She wore a matching chapel length veil edged with scalloped lace which was held in place with a Camelot coif of Cluny lace accented with seed pearls and marked with a satin ribbon bow. Her bridal bouquet was a cascade of pink sweetheart roses, white and pink carnations and tiny sprigs of Baby's breath.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Philip Barron of Canyon, the bride's sister, as matron of honor; Miss Sheryl Gunter of Canyon, maid of honor; and bridesmaids, Miss Mary Lou Richey and Miss Carla Ratliff, sister of the bridegroom, both of Canyon.

They wore identical gowns of delicate pink crepe fashioned with empire bodices, V-necklines and in a sleeveless summer design. The soft full skirts of their gowns were caught at the bodice with a sash that tied in a soft bow at the back. Each carried a cascade bouquet of varying spring flowers ranging from soft to deep pink with touches of Baby's breath highlighting the bouquets and sprigs of Baby's breath in their hair.

Best man was Ronnie Cates of Amarillo. Serving as groomsmen were Bill Moore, Steve Williams and Ricky McCarter, all of Canyon. Ushering were Jim Killingsworth of Bentonville, Arkansas, Robby Ratliff and Douglas Day, both of Canyon, and Kenny Barton of Amarillo.

The reception was held in the church parlor immediately following the marriage ceremony. A white net and satin cloth over linen was used on the reception table which was appointed with crystal and silver.

Fresh flowers in shades of pink decorated the wedding cake and the bride's bouquet was used for the centerpiece. Serving punch and wedding cake at the reception were Mrs. Mike Shadix, Miss Kathy Platt and Miss Mendy Sternenberg. Miss Judy McBroom registered guests at the wedding.

For the wedding trip, the bride changed to a white pant suit with a deep pink blouse and carried a single long stemmed rose.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Canyon High School. She is a sophomore education major at West Texas State University and the bridegroom is a freshman at the university here. He is also employed with the Texas Parks and Wildlife department.

Mrs. Sims has served many years in Federation and held many positions, including District President and State Board Member. She was opposed by Mrs. Claude Riley, of Victoria, and Mrs. Howard Weant, of Falfurrias. The Top of Texas delegation was very proud that the convention body elected Mrs. Sims.

WINDSWEPT TUMBLEWEED is the subject of a watercolor painting captured by Mrs. Jerri Warren, local artist and instructor of art at West Texas State University. It was among western art presented at a fest in Perryton this week end.

Local Artists Exhibit Works In Perryton During Weekend

By LORENA MILLER

Jerri Warren of Canyon presented several western art selections for viewing by area residents at a Western Art Show in Perryton during the week end.

The exhibit was at the Veterans of Foreign Wars Building in Perryton and was open to the general public Saturday afternoon. Also included in the week end's activities was a special steer roping contest which will conclude there today.

The Western Art Show also included other painters and sculptors from the Panhandle area including Margaret Campbell, art instructor from West Texas State University; Don Ray of Channing, formerly of Canyon; Mike McCullough of Canyon with western sculpture; Jim Thomas of Amarillo, formerly of Canyon; Jim Ward and many others known to Canyon residents.

A native of Dalhart, Mrs. Warren earned her bachelor's degree in 1943 from West Texas State. She says that she knew a little about "sketching" when she came to the university to study.

In 1966, Mrs. Warren returned to West Texas State University as a student to earn the master's degree in education with art concentration, which was a forerunner of the master's degree in art.

She joined the art staff at the university in September following her graduation and is currently concluding her eighth year of teaching art. Summers she spends at Ruidoso, N.M. giving private lessons in drawing and sketching to students from throughout the area.

Jerri Warren and her husband, A.M., reside east of Canyon at the Warren Hereford Ranch where she finds many of her subjects for drawing and painting.

"I like western landscaping and do a lot of my sketching at home and in Palo Duro Canyon," she said. She is especially interested in landscapes studies rather than the whole expanse of landscape painting.

During the spring wind storms she said that "a tumbleweed blew onto the barbed wire fencing and I hurriedly grabbed my scarf, pencil and paper to run out and sketch the effect in the wind." She later painted the sketch into a water color painting which has a depth of true western art.

Mrs. Warren related that she likes landscaping and studies of landscape objects rather than traditional horse and cowboy styling used by many artists. She has painted a truelife scene of a windmill, pond, and barren tree on their ranch which has a special place in the family home and belongs to her husband. From the windmill scene, Mrs. Warren has also captured several other views of the windmill with her water color artistry.

Although she has enjoyed art and drawing since childhood, Mrs. Warren never insisted that her own two children become interested in the subject. "When they wanted to paint and draw I let them but it was for their own enjoyment," she related.

The Warren's children include a son, Dr. Randy Warren at Brooks General Hospital in San Antonio, and a daughter, Penny Hart, who resides in Lubbock.

"Randy liked art but his way of capturing the subject was with a camera," said Mrs. Warren. "Sometimes he would sit for hours waiting on the shadows to cross a certain space and frame his subject in photography.

"You see art every day," she related. "It is really what you see in your mind that you transpose onto paper through the hand and brush. Artists must learn depth and proper techniques to acquire depth and meaning by learning to draw and sketch their subjecs," feels Mrs. Warren.

Sports Facilities Due Board Views

Canyon school board members will hear a report from architects Tuesday night on the possibility of converting the old vocational-agriculture building at the high school campus into new dressing rooms for varsity sports.

The board meets at 8:30 p.m. at the high school.

Architects will also present a report on the possibility of constructing a semi-circular driveway at the front of the high school campus to facilitate the loading of school buses.

Board members instructed Supt. Jerry Jacobs at their last meeting to begin studies on the feasibility of converting the now-vacant vocational building at the high school into dressing rooms for football and track.

They cited lack of space for varsity athletics in the current fieldhouse area behind the gymnasium at the school.

Vocational and agricultural education will be located in a new two-building complex next fall. The wing has been under construction since last August.

Board members are scheduled to hear a report from Dr. Kenneth Laycock concerning the findings of a recent self-evaluation committee which visited the campus for continued accreditation purposes.

A discussion is also expected on a new state law which requires the school to become involved in workmen's compensation insurance.

Canyon FFA Chapter Named Number One

Canyon High School chapter of Future Farmers of America was named the number one chapter of the Panhandle at the Area I convention in Lubbock Saturday May 12. Ninety-seven chapters competed for the honor.

Basketball Clinic Set Canyon

One of the Golden Spread Basketball Camps, a new innovation in instruction for youngsters, will be held in Canyon June 17-28. There will be five and possibly six locations for these schools in the Panhandle area.

All camps will be under the direction of area high school basketball coaches and will feature the West Texas State University coaching staff as guest instructors. WTSU head basketball coach Ron Ekker is the owner of the Golden Spread Basketball Camps and they are franchised to the high school coaches who will be the camp directors.

B.B. Kendrick, Canyon High basketball coach, will direct the local camp. Other camps in the area include Amarillo, Borger, and Hereford. One other camp may be added at a later date according to Rick Starzecki, coach at WTSU and one of the guest instructors.

WTSU coaches Ekker, Starzecki and J.D. Barnett will appear as guest instructors at each camp.

Each camp will have 25 hours of instruction and each camper will receive a Golden Spread basketball T-shirt and will be covered by insurance during the camp period. The camps will include instruction in all fundamentals of basketball such as shooting, ball handling, rebounding and defense. The campers will also take part in numerous game situations that are developmental as well as being fun.

Instruction will be based on the idea of supplementing the basketball background of each member to the point where performance will be improved during the next and succeeding years.

The age groups will be from 8 to 15 years, however, anyone who plans on being a member of a high school varsity sport next year would not be eligible.

Each camp member will practice and compete in group sessions according to his size and ability. The camp director will determine which group a member will be a part of, however, requests for grouping may be made.

The cost of each camp is $35, of which a $10 deposit is required. The balance of the payment is due on the first day of the clinic.

Parents may enroll their children or obtain further information by writing to the Golden Spread Basketball Camp, P.O. Box 792, Canyon, TX. 79015 or call 655-3881. The clinic enrollment and the size of each session group is limited due to the individual supervision and instruction. Applications will be considered in the order in which they are received.

Heart Unit Has Meeting

The Canyon-Randall unit of the American Heart Association held a board orientation last week with Grady Stevens, state planning representative of the Texas Affiliation of the American Heart Association, outlining the responsibilities of a board member and pointing out the "advantages of estate planning and designation of donations."

Eleven local board members were present at the meeting. Plans were discussed for a program to be held by the AHA for all interested persons to be held at the Hilton Inn in Amarillo Tuesday at 4 p.m. to be followed with a dutch treat supper.

Canyon-Randall unit of AHA will conduct their business drive this month with co-chairmen, Cordell Huddleston and Gene Glazener, in charge.

Next regular meeting for the Canyon-Randall unit will be June 5 at the West Texas State University cafeteria at 7:15 a.m.

Light Agenda Set

Canyon city commissioners will tie into a light agenda at their 7 p.m. Monday regular meeting in the community center.

Consideration of recommendations for changes in the city's electrical code from the city electrical board heads the agenda list.

A request from the First United Methodist Church to pave part of an alley is also on the agenda.

Dr. A. J. Luquette will present a report on the city-sponsored summer youth program.

Karon Thompkins was named queen for the Canyon noon Lions Club at the Wednesday meeting of the club this past week. Karon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Thompkins of Amarillo, is a junior at Canyon High School. She has been a cheerleader for two years. This past year she was football queen and a nominee for homecoming queen. Karon was crowned by Tracie Erwin, outgoing queen.

Plat For Area Due Scrutiny Of Commission

Randall County commissioners will again Monday discuss a proposed plat for a north county subdivision, which has been the focal point of controversy for the court.

Commissioners meet at 1 p.m. in the Canyon courthouse.

Horace Dwight, developer, will present his plat for McCormick Estates #2. In past months, commissioners have carried on a running discussion with Dwight about construction of sub-quality roads and other factors in the subdivision.

Commissioners are also scheduled to talk with Mrs. Audrey Bruse, tax assessor-collector, about other tax office computer equipment and to set a date for the annual board of equalization meeting.

R.B. Gist Jr. is to meet with commissioners to discuss naming of roads in South Randall County.

Commissioners are set to discuss a meeting scheduled for Thursday for themselves, commissioners from Potter County and Amarillo and Canyon city commissioners.

Fire Service Uses

While the road situation has been a major problem contended with by commissioners in the past year, another problem centering on providing city-type services for rural subdivisions has been that of fire service.

Last fall the county signed a pact with the City of Canyon which stipulates the city will provide fire service for rural areas to Hollywood Road for an annual fee.

The county is still negotiating with the City of Amarillo on an $845 per fire call fee that city is charging the county to fight rural fires.

For commissioners, the fire service situation could also become critical in the next few years as more and more former city residents begin to move to subdivisions.

The situation could parallel that of the streets in terms of spiraling costs due to increased demands for services the county was not originally designed to handle.

And Sewage Disposal

Commissioners dealt only briefly last fall with another facet of the subdivision problem when they tried to come to grips with the inadequacy of sewage disposal systems in some portions of the county.

Their attempts to grapple with the bore-hole drilling issue pointed up the county's own inability to deal with urban problems.

The issue focused on the decided probability that continued use of deep-drilled bore holes to dispose of sewage could contaminate underground water supplies in subdivision areas.

Commissioners discussed the problem during several meetings, but took no action.

No Real Power

County government, says Commissioner Lindsey, simply was not designed to deal with the problems of controlling city-type developments.

"We don't have the power to zone and really we have no power to put on restrictions as such on what they build or where they build," he said.

Indeed, the county has no legal authority to restrict subdivision development or the kinds of facilities used in subdivisions for water or supply or sewage disposal.

Randall County commissioners have no power to pass ordinances to facilitate ordered growth.

And, they have no power to more equitably spread the tax burden so subdivision residents pay their proportionate share for the services they require.

Commissioners have used what teeth they have in attempting to hold the line on expenditures for maintenance of city-type streets in subdivisions and have bared those teeth only on one occasion.

Because most developers desire to have the county assume responsibility for maintenance of their developments' roads, they can be forced to build their roads according to county-set specifications.

But, as Lindsey has noted in commission meetings, the county cannot force developers to build their roads according to the road policy and the chances are good that in several years, after the development has been sold, commissioners will have to face irate subdivision residents demanding that their roads be maintained.

In an effort to head off that possibility, commissioners in one development filed a resolution in the deed records to forewarn potential purchasers of land in the development that the county would not assume responsibility for road maintenance in their area.

Cities Involved, Too

While rapid subdivision development and expansion has caused and will cause numerous headaches for county government in Randall County, the expansion also poses some serious potential problems for the two city governments in the county.

Canyon City Manager George Loudder reiterates the inequity of a tax situation where subdivision residents expect and demand city services but pay only low county taxes.

The burden, he notes, falls on the county to provide those services, but in the long run the city becomes involved to a great extent because Canyon and Amarillo are the governmental units which have the services which the subdivision residents demand.

Thus, the county must in some way work with the cities to provide and extend those city services to the subdivision areas.

"As far as the City of Canyon is concerned, we're looking down the road some time in the future and all we foresee is that the developments will have to be provided with these services," Loudder said.

The city now provides fire service for the rural areas on a contract basis with the county. It also provides a landfill for disposal of garbage for rural subdivisions on a contract with the county.

But, for the cities, the problem extends further because it is virtually an eventuality that Canyon and Amarillo city limits will some time in the future grow closer together. As they do, areas once in rural subdivisions will come into the cities' limits.

"Each of these housing units has a water problem, a sewer problem and a solid waste disposal problem right now," Loudder said.

If adequate planning is not carried out for a development in providing long-range contingencies for water, sewer, solid waste and other services, then eventually the developments become the problems of the cities.

"We're ones with the facilities," Loudder said. "We have the police, the fire department and the water and sewer facilities."

Amarillo City Manager John Stiff echoed Loudder's concerns.

"As long as they're outside the city they do not create problems," Stiff said. "But, when we annex them, they create problems because they have no water lines, their streets are substandard, the right-of-way is inadequate, they have no sewer lines."

Stiff said the city of Amarillo has spent "millions of dollars," to give formerly rural areas adequate services.

Possible Solutions

Part of the solution to the problems posed by rapidly growing subdivision areas, all agree, is adequate planning.

But, they also note, all the planning in the world will do little good unless the county can become actively engaged in controlling the kinds of developments which crop up in rural areas.

A possible solution is on the horizon in a proposed provision of the yet-to-be approved Texas Constitution. That provision would give the county the ability to pass a home rule charter and to pass ordinances.

"Our general law type government for the county is as far out of date as the Model T would be in the automobile field," Lindsey says.

He believes it would be desirable for the county to have the ability to pass ordinances, to put teeth into planning designs.

"It would be good to have that power if it would be used sparingly," he said. "There need to be a lot of safeguards if the power is granted."

Robena Johnson should be named Panhandle high school girls track queen. She was number one in four events and second in one event for the five events she was allowed to enter this year.

If the experts do not choose her as tops then she definitely is sophomore of the year. She was named sophomore of the year for basketball this past season.

Miss Johnson led Panhandle girl tracksters in the 60-yard dash with a time of 6.9 seconds, in the 100-yard dash with a time of 10.8 seconds, in the triple jump with a distance of 37 feet 11¾ inches and in the long jump with an 18 feet 4½ inch record. She was second in the 220-yard dash with a time of 25.4 seconds.

Lynn Davis was second in the 880-yard dash in the Panhandle comparison with a 2:27.5 time. Penny Peckenpaugh was second in the discus with a 115 feet 4 inch throw.

Alisha Nelson was third in both the 880-yard hurdles and the 440-yard dash.

Eighty six is a large number when one thinks of it in terms of a football team. Ron Missle, head football coach at Canyon High School, said that a sophomore team will be established at the beginning of this next football season. Mills said that sophomores would be given the chance to make the varsity, but that it would take a "super sophomore" because of the returning talent.

Mills said that he felt the establishment of a sophomore team was just one more step in making Canyon football competitive for 4-A ranks. The varsity schedule for the coming year includes six 4-A schools. High school football in Canyon should prove interesting at the beginning of this next season.

Basketball at Canyon High School may have to go to three teams for the boys division come this winter. There are 38 boys signed up for basketball. This does not include the boys who will play who are members of the football program.

The girls have a sophomore team already. The girls sophomore team play as many games as the varsity. This helps to develop a good program and it is no wonder that Canyon has had state championship material for several years.

U.S. District Judge David Porter ruled in a case involving the Cincinnati Bengals and linebacker Bill Bergey who was contacted by the WFL. Porter ruled that Bergey "is a fine young man, an emotional person with a great competitive spirit. Bergey has no intention of breaching his contract by letting down in the slightest."

This sounds like one of two things. Porter and Bergey are good friends or else how did Porter know so much about Bergey. The second thing is even worse. Porter sounded like and could have been nothing more than a cheering fan who wanted to see the WFL make it and Bergey get a better contract.

Dallas judges have agreed to a restraining order against the WFL contacting Cowboy players. Judges in other areas disagree. It seems that "team loyalty" is getting the best of justice.

End Of School Social Set At CJHS

The End of School Social for Canyon Junior High School students will be held at the junior high building from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Friday, May 24.

Presently enrolled junior high students only will be admitted to the party. There is no charge to the student to attend. Activity at the party will be sponsored by the junior high school faculty.

Entertainment will include dancing in the old gym, games of volleyball, table tennis, and badminton to be played in the P.E. gym. Parlor games will be available in the activities center. Refreshments will be served from the concession area between the two gyms.

Parents are welcome to attend.
